Birmingham's Strategy for Children,
Young People and Culture

A Creative Future reflects a shared vision for what cultural provision for children and young people in our city can and should be.

Take the Creative Future Pledge. Sign up to the six commitments below and see how you can support high quality cultural provision for all young people in our City

- All children and young people in Birmingham should have the opportunity to experience high quality arts and cultural provision as audience members, participants, creators and leaders
- All children and young people should have access to high quality cultural education in schools and other educational settings
- All children and young people should have access to and understanding of a clear progression pathway for broadening and deepening arts and cultural engagement from 0 – 25 years
- All children and young people should have access to high quality creative careers advice, education and guidance and support for accessing employment opportunities within the creative industries
- All children and young people should have the opportunity to receive recognition and accreditation for their achievements within the arts
- All children and young people should be able to have a meaningful voice in cultural planning and provision in Birmingham
